Philippines welcomes 7 billionth baby Danica

By Jocelyn R. Uy

AS SOON as the first pregnant mothers were wheeled out of the labor into the delivery room, a group of well-wishers in a pink circle atop a big chocolate birthday cake.

Five minutes before midnight Sunday, the Philippines welcomed its Danica May as the world's symbolic "seven-billionth" baby. Other countries across the globe marked similar milestones with their own newborn infants.

Around the millions of births and deaths around the world each day, it is impossible to pinpoint the arrival of the globe's seven-billionth occupant. But the UN chose Monday to mark the day with a string of festivities worldwide. (See related story on Page A9.)

The Philippines was one of the first countries to declare a seven-billionth baby—represented by Danica.

Hold departure order vs Ligots

By Marlon Ranco

JUSTICE Secretary Leila de Lima yesterday directed the National Prosecution Service to immediately secure a hold departure order to prevent former military commander Arsenio Ligot and his wife Edilinda from slipping out of the country.

According to the limits, there were no indications that the couple had already fled abroad after the Court of Tax Appeals ordered their arrest on Friday on a tax evasion case filed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR).

In its complaint with the Department of Justice, the BIR said the Ligots owed the government P133.3 million in taxes, including interest and penalties, for their failure to declare their income of P164.3 million in 2010.

Villarosa says filings just harassment

By Michaela Velez
Bureau Staff Writer

CALAPAN CITY—Former Presidential Majority Whip Jose Villarosa said that after he was acquitted by the Court of Appeals in the murder of Paul and Michael Quizon, he was harassed by the media.

"There is filed with the Supreme Court on the question of bail of the members of the Court of Appeals, which was also denied. For that reason, this is simply political harassment since the situation is not," Villarosa said.

Villarosa said Quizon was a "political candidate who has not even been named yet as a vice-presidential candidate." He said that Quizon was a "political candidate who has not even been named yet as a vice-presidential candidate."

"The SPA had submitted through the court that they were the ones who killed the two sons of the SPA," he said. "The SPA had submitted through the court that they were the ones who killed the two sons of the SPA."

Quizon's son, Paul and Michael, were gunned down by a group of armed men at a birthday party in Marikina, Marikina City, on Dec. 17, 1997.

There is a possibility that Villarosa is being helped by the filing. Quizon alleged that Villarosa wanted to take a bribe of his family's Golden Century Bank, which Michael was managing at the time.

But saying that the Quizon had been killed and killed by the SPA, the SPA had submitted through the court that they were the ones who killed the two sons of the SPA.

In December 1997, a murder case against Villarosa was filed in a Marikina court and later, Villarosa was acquitted. This case was filed in a Marikina court and later, Villarosa was acquitted.

The other suspects who were arrested were Helen Bolognes, Gilda Bolognes, Maricela Bolognes, Juan Bolognes and Maria Bolognes. They were arrested in the Marikina City.

Death sentence

After eight years, Villarosa, along with the Marikina 6, was sentenced to death by the murder of the Quizon family. A decision was made by the Supreme Court on the appeal of the Quizon family.

Recently the government asked the Supreme Court to void the acquittal of Villarosa and three others in the killing of the Quizon family.

The Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) questioned the authority of the Court of Appeals to void the acquittal of the Quizon family.

Although it is a political case, the public would be interested in the case. The case is a political case, the public would be interested in the case.

SC upholds life term for drug trafficker

Court notes evidence vs accused strong despite violation of his rights

By Marko Reyes

THE SUPREME COURT has upheld the life sentence meted out by a Pasay City Regional Trial Court (RTC) against a Chinese drug trafficker who tried to sneak in more than 31 kilograms of shabu (methamphetamine hydrochloride) at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport in 1991.

In a decision dated Oct. 19, the high tribunal affirmed the conviction of the accused by the RTC, which sentenced him to life imprisonment for violating Section 33, Article III of the Philippine Constitution, which states that anyone who is found guilty of violating the law shall be sentenced to life imprisonment.

The accused, who was found guilty of violating the law, was sentenced to life imprisonment. The court noted that the evidence against him was strong despite the fact that he was not given a fair trial.

It added that the lower court did not err in convicting the accused of violating the law. The court noted that the evidence against him was strong despite the fact that he was not given a fair trial.

Floodwalls keep Bangkok dry but provinces angry

BANGKOK—Shielded by hundreds of thousands of watertight piled-drivers along the city's outskirts, most of Bangkok is immune dry on Sunday, despite the fact that the eastern provinces are being hit by severe flooding.

But along the floodwalls, which straddle the city and are protected by soldiers and police officers around the clock, the water is a mixture of relief and frustration.

"I am just hoping this flood wall will break," said Oranont Samsak, 45, a factory worker looking for a better job elsewhere. He said he was not sure if he would be able to find a job elsewhere.

The floodwalls barely extend to protect Bangkok, have trapped a giant pocket of floodwater that cannot be drained of water. By opening the low-lying region, which has been the focus of the country's main river system, officials worried the provinces would be hit.

"I understand that you want to save the majority," said Suk-tee, whose house is inundated with brown water reaching waist level. "But the government is not thinking of the people who are in the flood."

The flooding, the worst in at least half a century, has affected 2 million people and left close to 100,000 people homeless.

Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra has said the government will not allow the flood to spread.

But that threat of Bangkok is fading, when the flood will help flood water more than 100 km deep into the water. It is not clear if the flood will help flood water more than 100 km deep into the water.

On Friday the police arrested a man in the city for trying to break through the wall. He was in the city for trying to break through the wall.

Some flood barriers have been damaged under attack from protesters in recent days despite the deployment of the police. The police have been deployed to the city.

The situation is serious," said Somsak Samsak, the director of Bangkok's National Disaster Warning Center. "If the floodwalls break, the city will be in trouble."

There is tension between Bangkok and the eastern cities of Chong Chai and Nakhon Phanom. The cities are in the north of the country.

The flood walls of Bangkok are likely to remain flooded for several weeks, the government says. The government is not sure if the flood will help flood water more than 100 km deep into the water.
